Complaint Registration Process:

A customer can register a complaint by calling the call center number applicable in his/ her area. For a list of call center numbers, please refer to annexure II.

The customer will be connected to the Complaint Management Group (CMG) after a three level classification based on:

- Whether he/ she is a new customer or existing customer.
- Whether it is a service request or a complaint.
- Whether it is a Billing complaint or a Technical complaint

Once connected to the CMG executive, the customer will need to provide his/ her Login ID and some verification details to the executive to look into the account details.

The CMG executive will ascertain from the customer, the problem being encountered and will check whether any request relating to the problem is still pending. If there is a pending request, the CMG executive will inform the customer the status of the complaint and the expected time to resolve the same.

If there is no pending request pertaining to the complaint, then the CMG executive will check if there is any bulk fault information available. This could be information on certain services, areas, etc that would not be available due to network/ service upgrades or certain identified faults. In case the problem pertains to any such reasons for which bulk information is available, the CMG executive informs the customer about the status, the expected time to resolve and raises a Service Request (SR).

In case no bulk fault information is available, the CMG executive carries out First Level Resolution of faults as per standard procedure. This action can help a customer resolve some faults with the help of the call center.

If the complaint is resolved, then the executive closes the call by entering the relevant details and closing the SR.

If the complaint is not resolved then the CMG executive raises a SR for the same and basis the complaint classification, a request flows to the relevant function to resolve the SR.

Taking into consideration the maximum reasonable usage required by the average user, Tata Indicom Broadband has established a monthly data transfer threshold (Fair Usage Limit) for the following tariff plans as given below:
